MATT ARGYROPOULOS

Client Analyst

Matt Argyropoulos joined Laird Norton Wealth Management in 2018 and is currently a client analyst. Matt works closely with clients to understand their unique needs and goals, and to analyze the pros and cons of the financial decisions they need to make to lead the life they want, now and well into the future. He draws on LNWM's in-house expertise to implement integrated and comprehensive wealth planning strategies that will work best for clients at each stage of life.

In his current role, Matt is involved in all aspects of client-account management and financial planning. His duties include working closely with LNWM client advisors to create, implement and monitor client financial plans, to maintain the appropriate asset allocation strategy within client portfolios, and to propose solutions that enhance the overall client relationship.

Prior to joining LNWM, Matt was a financial advisor at Morgan Stanley. He has a bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Washington State University.
